d Case Note
11/12/19 Hamed received the papers from IRS regarding the last year's taxes and came into our office to get help and look into them. The IRS document was regarding his 2018 taxes and was not related to his business in any way, so I gave him a couple of CPA contracts. I discussed his issue with a PARS representative who offers assistance with taxes for free, so I referred him to her to resolve this issue. 11/15/19 I met with Hamed and the PARS to discuss his issue with taxes. He was offered and received free professional help with his tax problems. Also, we planned to meet with him next week to process the paperwork for his business. 12/9/19 When Hamed came to our office to process the paperwork for his business, he met our other client - CPA. Hamed asked for a professional opinion of the CPA. CPA was happy to help, and he confirmed that the steps we've taken to resolve the issue with taxes for the year 2018 were correct

- a. Business Service Status Keeps track of the status of the business service being provided. This service will only be counted on the Dashboard once the status is changed to “Completed.”

- d. Case Note Add details about the business service provided. Case notes need to be clear, concise, and objective. Provide accurate details of the service provided and what occurred (who, what, where, when, why, and how). Include discussions related to the service goal, action steps, timelines, strengths and barriers.

If you start working with a client setting up their social media platforms or completing a business plan and they do not complete the task in a single sitting, then leave the status as In Development and leave the Date Completed blank. You can come back to the same service and update the case note whenever you follow-up with the client. Once the service goal is complete then change the status to Complete and enter the date the service was complete.

Best Practice Tip

If you provided services to a client face-to-face, over the phone, or on a conference call. Email the client going over what was discussed and next steps. You can then attach this email to the service you just entered.

- e. Notes & Attachments Attach any emails or related documents (Needs Assessment, Market Assessment, Profitability Assessments, Debt Management Schedules, Business Plans, Marketing Strategies, etc.) by clicking on the Related tab and uploading the file.

Run a Case Note report

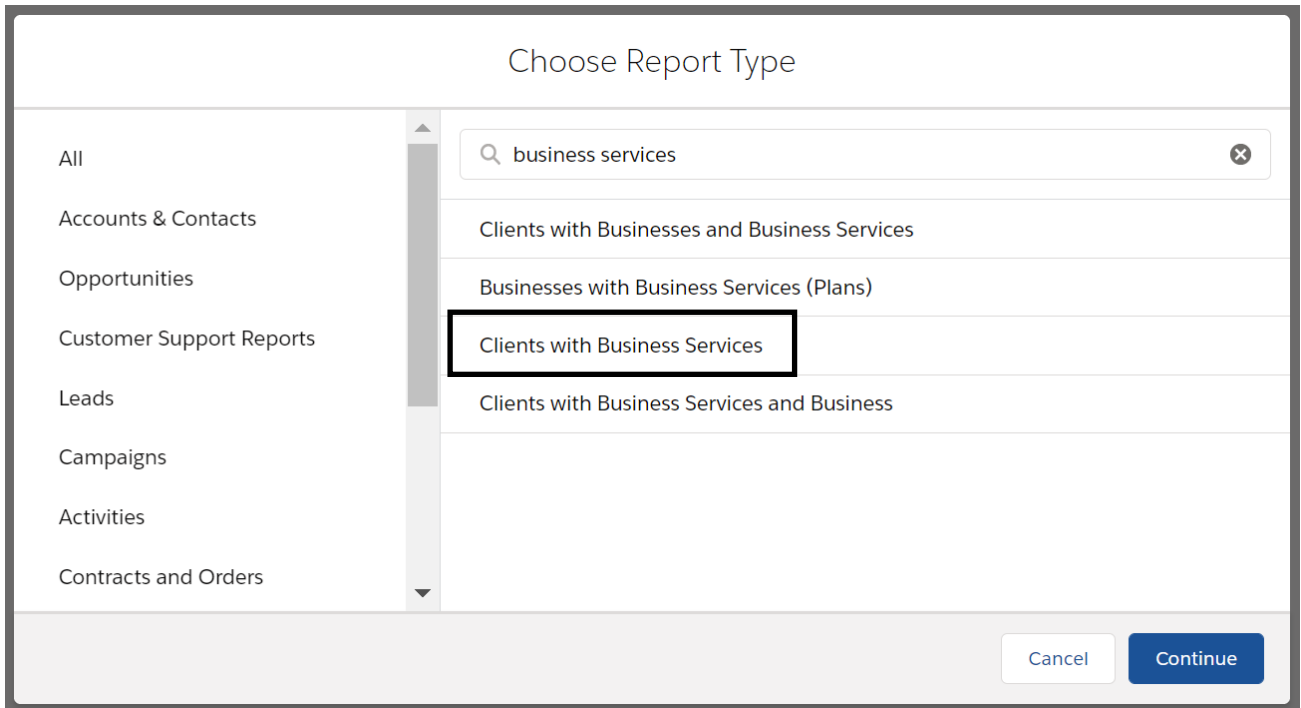

You can pull a report listing all the case notes to either get a chronicle log of services provided to the client.

1. Click on Reports in the App Navigation.

2. Click on New Report

- Under Accounts & Contacts, select Clients with Business Services and then click Continue. We select this Report Type since we add the business service on the Client page. Please note, if you add everything on the business page then you should select Businesses with Business Services. However every Business Service should have both the Client and Business listed so it should not matter which report you select.

- Under the Outline tab, the report will automatically pull the Client: LABSC Clients and Business Service: Business Service ID columns. You will also need the following columns: Business Service: Dare Service Provided, Business Service: Business Services, Business Service: Business Service Status, Business Service: Case Note. See the section Building a Report for more information. Make sure to save the report.
